FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

Translating the Buzz to Improve the Hospice Experience:
Putting the AI in Hospice CAIre

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 17, 2024 – Kansas City Hospice & Palliative Care and other industry thought-leaders will discuss how artificial intelligence (AI) can further enhance the caregiver-patient-family relationship during an upcoming Community Education Session, Putting the AI in Hospice CAIre.

This session at noon, Thursday, June 20, is free, on Zoom, and open to the public.

"We're having these conversations regularly so we wanted people to know how we're leveraging the latest technology to make their hospice experience even better," says David Wiley, President & CEO of Kansas City Hospice, one of a three-person panel of experts who will be speaking during the hour-long session.

Also on the panel are Lindsey Jarrett, PhD, Vice President of Ethical AI – Center for Practical Bioethics, speaking on the ethical considerations of AI and Richard M. Berner, Chief Executive Officer – Complia Health, now part of Axxess, speaking on current and potential uses of AI in hospice. The panel moderator is Caryn Hohnholt, Chief Development & Communications Officer of Kansas City Hospice.

Listen in, then get your questions answered as panel participants explore how hospice providers, including Kansas City Hospice, are translating all the AI buzz into actionable insights to improve patients' and families' hospice experience. Please click to register for this noon, June 20, 2024 session.
